About me:

I love learning about technology, people's psychology, medicine and education.

For different personal reasons few years ago I decided to switch my professional career, and I reoriented it to become a Web Designer/Developer.

Now I'd love to grow more professionally in areas such UX, UI, IA, but I'd also like to keep improving my programming skills in general.

Fan of the long life learning and the teamwork, I believe to be a very committed, a hard worker, and an easy going person.

I try to make clean and simple semantic code, and also learn carefully what is best in every step of the way so I can apply the better options for every part of a project.
